“ I met Chris at McDonald's in Wise & we became immediate friends. He always had me laughing. He was the sweetest person, sassy but sweet. Everyone who knew Chris loved him. We had a incident were we opened 2gether & I had just filled all the tea urns up & I was pushing them to the front & all of a sudden the cart tipped & tea went all over me & him & the floor & at 430 we were scrambling to clean it up as fast as we could, but he helped me & he didn't have too. Chris would literally give you the shirt off his back. He was a great friend. Love you Chris you will be missed greatly ❤️

“ I worked with Chris for many years at wise mcdonalds. There was never a dull moment with him around. He was a good worker and made the best biscuits mcdonalds ever served. He wasn't perfect and he would tell you that personally. There were few things he held near and dear. He loved his dogs to no end. He also loved his brother even though they didnt always get along. But his parents were his life. Chris spoke mostly about them in our conversations. He loved his mommy and daddy more than life itself. I wish them peace and comfort during this difficult time. Rest easy Chris.
