“ We have known each other for as long as I can remember. We use to make chili so hot it would melt the plate! We burnt up the back roads and listened to music way too loud! We worked endless hours on old cars and drank many a beer together ! I will never forget the friendship and devotion we had! We got our first tattoos together! We're on the fire department together! Can't brother I thought we had so much time left to get together and catch up ! You opened my eyes and I'll never take a second of this life for granted from here on out ! I love you brother! Keep the gate open ! One day we will sat and have a laugh together with family and friends again ! I know you're looking over us all because that's the person you are ! Enjoy heaven you deserve it and tell everyone I said hi ! Till then your in my thoughts and heart !

“ You were the guy who always knew. The latest tech, the best tools, the right way to get the job done—you had the answer every time. I swear, no matter what I asked, you’d come back with some kind of wisdom, whether it was a real solution or just something to make me laugh.

And man, did we love our tools. Milwaukee, of course—none of that other junk. We could spend all day talking about what we had, what we needed, and what we absolutely didn’t need but were gonna buy anyway.

I’ll never forget how mad you tried to act every time I scared the heck out of you. The way you’d jump, give me that look, and pretend like you weren’t amused. But I knew better. You loved every second of it, even if you wouldn’t admit it.

Things won’t be the same without you. The shop will be quieter, the conversations will be missing something, and there’s gonna be a whole lot of times I wish I could ask you one more question—because you always had the answer.

Miss you, my friend. I’ll keep the tools running and the jokes coming. Hope you’re up there surrounded by all the latest tech and the best tools imaginable.

“ Our hearts are broken, I will miss your seriousness when all of us trying to be funny, and the days we stand up front at work for our last 15min talking about the stupidest things and even say where do we come up with the things we talk about. Any new technology we knew to ask you how to work it. All your ideas you come up with to invent something , tool holders, or winch on the ceiling to hoist hose. We all spent 10yrs with you everyday to say you are missed at work is a understatement.
