“ It is hard to believe that it has been two weeks since my dear sweet wife Pam has been gone. I miss her more every day and I am lost without her. She was the love of my life and my soul mate and my heart breaks more every day. I just hope that I can see her again one day and that my kids know that their mom still loves them very much.

“ Pam was my first and best high school friend. we shared alot of good memories and laughs together over the years. whether we were crusing the streets of Haysi on the weekend, eating at the Pizza Factory in town, staying the night with pam, going to our high school proms, going on senior trip. We always had fun whatever we did. then life happened and we grew into adults. We went our separate ways. Many years later we reconnected. I will forever regret the years we lost but will forever be thankful for our past and present times together before Pam's passing. I am so grateful I was able to have that weekend with pam before this past Thanksgiving and the visit with her in the hospital before she passed. Pam had a heart of gold with such a beautiful soul. she loved her family and friends so deeply. she never met a stranger. she sincerely cared about everyone. pams faitn and devotion to God was amazing. I thank God for bringing Pam into my life. i will forever cherish our friendship.

I will always remember you pam. you will never be forgotten.

Love you now and forever

Rest in peace my precious, beautiful friend

“ Pam and I met in college. It was the first day of classes. She was sitting by herself at lunch and I asked if I could sit with her. I recognized her from our classes that day. Little did I know I was making a best friend. We shared so many memories and laughs. She made college fun. We graduated together, worked together, went through our kids being born, losing our fathers, life's ups and downs and so much more. She was someone I could trust, a true friend. When she moved away I didn't get to see her near as much as I wanted. We still talked and texted weekly. She loved her family. She loved Matt and her babies so much. She loved her brothers dearly. I am so thankful she seen Andrew graduate college. She was so proud of him and her sweet Sadee always. I can't believe I am sitting here typing all this. I will miss her terribly. She loved the Lord and I believe her soul is now resting with him. She missed her parents so much, but she been reunited with them. I believe I will see her again one day. Until then, I will cherish our memories and am so thankful for our friendship. I love you Pahmealuh
